AGENDA : GENDER EQUALITY: ACCESS TO RIGHTS, COMBATING GENDER VIOLENCE AND CLOSING THE PAY GAP

The United Nations Commission on the Status of Women is a functional commission of the United Nations Economic and Social Council, one of the principal organs of the United Nations. The UNCSW, being a principal global intergovernmental body, is exclusively dedicated to the promotion of gender equality, the rights and empowerment of women, and thus towards the advancement of women throughout the world. The UNCSW was established by the UN Economic and Social Council resolution on 21st June 1946.

The core reason for this gender inequality is rooted in the patriarchal power imbalance between men and women and the lack of efforts and the resistance of the society to change this. Despite significant advancements, women continue to face systemic inequality. Gender-based disparities in resources, power, and influence persist, exacerbated by factors such as age and ethnicity. Gender inequality is a fundamental denial of women's rights. There are many countries in Middle East and Central Asia where women are denied of their rights.

In some countries, women are not safe even in their own home and face violence on a daily basis, Women still are considered inferior to men and are paid less as compared to what men are paid. Not only is South Korea's gender pay gap highest among the OECD countries but its top spot is secured by a wide margin. It is followed by Israel where the gender gap is 25.4%.

By Sidhee Chopra & Sanchi Jain

Insightful Echo

"A world full of empowered women isn't one where men are marginalized. It's a world where everyone thrives."

Keeping this quote in mind the committee of UNCSW started its conference. In the stark glare of global scrutiny, Iran's state of women's rights is in a profound crisis.

The relentless gender inequality paints a grim picture of a nation where women are consistently relegated to second-class status. When questioned by the chair about its constitutionalized laws, there was no answer. Countries where women are inhumanely killed and security forces overlook women's demands for equality, if such countries remain quiet it looks questionable. It provides a grey area to the world about their stances.

To conclude, the dismal state of gender equality is not just a domestic issue. The world must hold such countries accountable for its violations. Only through persistent advocacy can we hope to see a future where gender equality is not an aspiration but a reality for every woman.

UNGA

AGENDA : DISCUSSING THE GLOBAL IMPACTS OF THE MIDDLE EAST CONFLICT WITH SPECIAL EMPHASIS ON THE ONGOING ISRAEL- PALESTINE WAR.

The UN General Assembly (UNGA) plays a pivotal role in global diplomacy, offering a platform for multilateral discussions among its 193 Member States, all based on the principle of sovereign equality. This ensures that every nation, regardless of size, has an equal voice. Presently, the UNGA is deeply involved in addressing the complex Israel-Palestine conflict, a central issue influencing Middle Eastern geopolitics and international relations.

This enduring conflict, rooted in historical, religious, and territorial disputes, has led to significant loss of life and humanitarian crises. The involvement of countries like Israel, Palestine, and Iran highlights the complex web of alliances and oppositions, while superpowers such as the USA, Russia, and China navigate their strategic interests. China, in particular, has criticized the US for using Israel as a strategic military outpost, further complicating global power dynamics.

As the conflict continues, the UNGA is tasked with addressing the roles of both state and non-state actors and confronting humanitarian issues, including displacement and human rights abuses. The Assembly's actions and discussions are crucial, as they reflect global tensions and contradictions. The international community is closely monitoring whether the UNGA can move beyond rhetoric to foster a meaningful resolution and bring stability to the Middle East and the broader world.

By Kapish Tayal & Tejashvee Binnani

Insightful Echo

As the committee session conveyed, viewing the allegations, I had a priceless experience into various stances of certain member states like Israel, Palestine, and Iran on the global impacts of the war in the Middle East, exposing the global superpowers of Israel-Palestine. The countries like the USA, Russia, and China had strong and very diplomatic positions, which showed the standing of the various nations in their support or opposition.

For instance, China questioned the USA in every action and reaction of Israel because the USA uses Israel as its military base. Don't you think it's ironic or an example of paradox that the "most powerful country" depends on a small country to monopolize the arms business?

In contrast to the agenda, India was constantly questioned by the delegate of United Kingdom but it chose to remain silent. This highlights the stand of diplomacy that India holds worldwide. In conclusion, the situation continues with the same enthusiasm, debates, and cooperation of member states for finding the common and peaceful solution for the whole world.

AGENDA : DISCUSSING THE SITUATION FOR LEGAL RECOGNITION AND HUMAN RIGHTS FOR LGBTQIA+ COMMUNITY

The UNHRC is an intergovernmental body within the United Nations made up of 47 states responsible for promotion and protection of all human rights around the globe .It responds to human rights emergencies and makes recommendations on how to better implement human rights on the ground.Established by the UN General Assembly in 2006, the Council replaced the former UN Commission on Human Rights to improve the ability of the UN to address human rights violations and respond to emerging human rights challenges. Through its mechanisms, the Council endeavors to hold states accountable, support victims of human rights abuses, and foster an environment where human rights are respected and protected for all.

One such topic being highlighted is the legal recognition for the LGBTQIA+ community and its fight for equal rights in the society. The challenges faced by the community have now become a global issue . The members and the community as a whole face discrimination, persecution and violence, which can lead to forced displacement and the need for international protection.

This is where the UNHRC's role comes into picture. The council is set to protect the rights of individuals and whole communities.

The agenda therefore tells us about the importance that this situation has. The fight for rights and recognition by the LGBTQIA+ community is not only crucial to them but to mankind as a whole because it embodies the broader struggle for human dignity,equality and freedom.

By Hiral Jain &Yatharth Goyal

Insightful Echo

As a reporter observing the deliberations at the United Nations Human Rights Council, I gained valuable insights into the varying stances of country delegates on LGBTQIA+ rights, revealing a tapestry of political beliefs and cultural values.

In the committee, it was seen that Canada firmly took its stance in supporting and giving rights to the LGBTQIA+ community as one of the first countries to legalize same sex marriage. Using this achievement as a shield and ignoring about the country's decline in support of the community is quite a matter of concern. While on the other hand the delegate of UAE left quite an impression saying that the country doesn't want to introspect but to point out the inefficiency of other countries for not being able to provide humans their basic rights. The irony in this statement can be seen through and through. All this while the delegate of Saudi Arabia remained silent neither questioning nor opposing the stance of the LGBTQIA+ supporting countries. This unexpected hush sparked a thought: could it be that the delegate is quietly reconsidering their country's stringent laws against the community? The contrasting positions of countries at the UNHRC highlight the complexities surrounding global LGBTQIA+ rights.

UNODC

AGENDA : SYRIA AS A NARCOSTATE: THE CAPTAGON EMPIRE AND ITS GEOPOLITICAL RAMIFICATIONS

The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime is a global leader in combating illicit drugs, international crime, and terrorism. UNODC educates the world about the dangers of drug abuse and strengthens international action against drug production, trafficking, and related crimes. To achieve these aims, it has launched a range of initiatives, including alternatives in the area of illicit drug crop cultivation, monitoring of illicit crops, and the implementation of projects against money laundering. The organization supports crime prevention, criminal justice reform, and addresses transnational crime and corruption.

Since the Syrian war began in 2011, Captagon has become a major concern, with the Assad regime and its allies heavily involved in its production and distribution. Manufacturing has shifted from Hezbollah-controlled areas in Lebanon to regime-held regions in Syria, such as Damascus and Latakia. The key players in this trade include figures like Amer Khiti, Khodr Taher, and General Bilal, who are deeply entrenched in the illicit economy. Captagon, once endemic to the Eastern Mediterranean, is now a serious issue across the region and beyond, with significant seizures reported in countries like Turkey, Jordan, Germany, and Malaysia. Despite mounting evidence of regime-linked production, the state continues to deny involvement, complicating efforts to combat the crisis. Regional and international efforts to curb Captagon's spread include increased interdiction at consumer hubs and the imposition of economic sanctions on Syrian suppliers.

By Aatmi Shah & Palak Sethia

Insightful Echo

As the world concentrates on the visible horrors of war and displacement in Syria, an equally insidious threat is emerging: Captagon. Russia, while backing Assad, tacitly accepts the regime's involvement in the drug trade, prioritizing its influence over the integrity and completely turning a blind eye on the impacts the people of this region face due to this life threatening drug. The U.S. prioritizes counterterrorism but often neglects the Captagon crisis, failing to address its broader regional impacts and largely blaming Syria. Meanwhile, Saudi Arabia faces rising addiction rates, exacerbating the problem. Despite these pressing challenges, the role of the UNODC in combating drug trafficking in these nations remains unclear and unaddressed. The international community's response, particularly from the P5 nations, has been disturbingly tepid, with a focus on geopolitical interests overshadowing the urgent need for coordinated action. It is crucial for global powers to recognize and prioritize the Captagon crisis to ensure regional stability and uphold international security.

Reporter of UNODC

UNSC

AGENDA : EXAMINING POLITICAL INSTABILITY IN THE KOREAN PENINSULA WITH SPECIAL FOCUS ON THE POSSIBILITY OF REUNIFICATION

The UN Security Council is the premier global body for maintaining international peace and security. The Security Council is the principal crisis-management body, is empowered to impose binding obligations on the 193 UN member states to maintain peace. It takes the lead in determining the existence of a threat to the peace or act of aggression and calls upon the parties to a dispute to settle it by peaceful means and recommends methods of adjustment or terms of settlement. In some cases, the Security Council can resort to imposing sanctions or even authorize the use of force to maintain or restore international peace and security. It's five permanent and ten elected members meet regularly to assess threats to international security, including civil wars, natural disasters, arms proliferation, and terrorism. The Korean peninsula has been the focal point of political instability since the end of World War II primarily due to the division between North Korea and South Korea. North Korea, officially known as the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK), operates under a totalitarian regime with a centralized command economy, while South Korea, or the Republic of Korea, is a democratic state with a market-oriented economy. The political instability in the region is driven by ongoing conflicts over ideology, sovereignty, and security concerns. Tensions have been exacerbated by periodic military provocations, nuclear weapons development, and external influences from major powers such as the United States, China, and Russia. These factors contribute to a volatile environment that complicates efforts towards reconciliation and reunification.

By Tanveera Desai & Khyati Keyal

Insightful Echo

As a reporter at the United Nations Security Council, it is increasingly evident that nations such as France, the United States, and the UAE strongly favour the Republic of Korea due to its steadfast commitment to democratic values and humanitarian principles. Reunification of the Korean Peninsula is fraught with challenges, primarily due to significant socioeconomic disparities and cultural differences rooted in North Korea's authoritarian rule. The North's self-reliance contrasts sharply with South Korea's market economy, complicating any potential unification process. Additionally, North Korea's formidable military may pose a threat to stability. Despite these considerable challenges, reunification holds the promise of numerous positive outcomes, including enhanced cultural exchange, economic growth, and lasting peace in the region. Ultimately, it is believed that promoting political stability and pursuing reunification will necessitate concerted and sustained efforts from both local and international stakeholders.
